Livestock Insurance

Animals are Assets too

As the owner and operator of an independent farm or ranch, you've made a number of investments into your agribusiness – equipment, machinery, and crops. Livestock is also a big investment for farmers and ranchers alike, and like any financial asset, you'll want to ensure a high-level of security and protection – so your animals will stay covered.

At eSummers Insurance Agency, we know that the health and safety of your animals directly affects the health and profitability of your farm.

Livestock insurance can protect you and your farm against the financial losses that could occur if your animals are harmed or killed as a result of a covered accident such as a fire, blizzard, or other natural disaster – even when your animals in transit.

Livestock insurance policies will vary from person to person, farm to farm, and animal to animal. The insurance value of each animal is usually its purchase price, but other factors such as performance level or value of your animal's offspring can increase that value. A specialist at eSummers Insurance Agency can help you determine the right amount of coverage at a price that meets your needs.
